Sirona Fuels Used Cooking Oil Recycling Programs

Sirona Fuels believes that used cooking oil is a critical component of the biodiesel industry. By collecting and refining used cooking oil from local businesses and government institutions and using the resulting biodiesel in our local community, we create a fuel with an extremely low carbon footprint. Local collection, local refining and local consumption has the greatest positive impact on our global and local community.

Sirona Cares for Schools

To promote the availability and use of this extremely low carbon biodiesel, Sirona Fuels is introducing a comprehensive used cooking oil recycling program. At the center of this program is our Sirona Cares for Schools Program. This program allows eligible local businesses and institutions to have Sirona Fuels donate money to the local school district based on the amount of used cooking oil that is provided to Sirona Fuels for refining and the value of the resulting biodiesel. This program includes:

- Cash donations made to local schools through our foundation Sirona Cares
- Donations increase as the value of biodiesel increases
- Marketing materials indicating participation in the Sirona Cares for Schools Program
- Supply of Sirona Fuels' cooking oil container
- Seamless transition of service provider
- Scheduled collections as well as on-call, as needed collections
- Cleaning of container with each collection
- Designated customer service representative

Free Collection and Cooking Oil Purchase Program

We recognize that the Sirona Cares for Schools Program may not be the right program for all customers. As a result, we are continuing to make available our Free Collection Service and, for certain customers, our Cooking Oil Purchase Pay for Oil program. As part of our overall drive towards sustainability, in our Cooking Oil Purchase Program, we are introducing a payment structure that ties the price we pay for cooking oil to the value of the biodiesel.
